Podcasting Series Digest

Simon Zuberek
Today’s Workshop

● Review of the covered material
● Develop example podcast activities
● Brainstorm and Discuss
So far we have covered:

- What is a podcast and why should we care?
- Pedagogical applications of podcasts and their implications for the language classroom.
- Using podcasts to address pedagogical objectives (teaching and learning goals)
- Recording a podcast
- Editing your recording
- Turning the recording into a podcast
What can we do with Podcasts?
Taxonomy (Rosell-Aguilar, 2007)

- Develop one’s own materials
  - Student-developed
  - Teacher-developed
- Using existing resources
  - Authentic materials not developed for language learning
  - Authentic materials developed specifically for classroom instruction
Activity Design

- Draw a stripe with a prompt
- How does this idea fit in within the podcasting taxonomy?
- What kind of podcast would this be?
- How would you design a podcast around this prompt?
- What pedagogical objectives would this podcast address? (learning as well as teaching objectives)
- How would you incorporate it into a lesson plan? Curriculum?

- If you already have an idea for a podcast activity, feel free to jump right to it.
What did you come up with?
Skip to the end