Article

- González-Lloret, Marta. "Technology for task-based language teaching." The handbook of technology and second language teaching and learning (2017): 234-247.

Discussion

1. What is your understanding of task-based language teaching? Is it consonant with how it's portrayed in the article?
2. The article draws a distinction between tasks that “promote language acquisition” and those that facilitate “communicative development”. How do you understand this difference?
3. What is a computer-mediated task? How is it different than a facet-to-face (F2F) task?
4. Have you employed any computer-mediated tasks in your classroom? To what effect? How did you go about the implementation?
5. On a few occasions, the article addresses digital literacy. How do you address this matter in your own classroom?
